PATRIOT PACKAGES

The next packing day will be Friday, February 17 at the Warrenton Armory from 9 a.m. to noon. Although we'll be past Valentine's Day, it's never too late to send a little "love" to our troops stationed in harm's way. We welcome volunteers (there's no skill involved) and donations. We are in need of single-serve drink mix, travel-size Kleenex and toothpaste. There is a drum to place donations outside the Property Owner Information Office at Charrette Creek Commons.

FEBRUARY GREEN HATS LUNCHEON

Ladies, join us at Sunny Street Cafe at 1814 Wentzville Pkwy. (left of Dierberg's) in Wentzville on Tuesday, February 21 at 11:30 a.m. You can either enjoy breakfast or lunch. Make reservations to Barb Powell at 636.745.8746.

NATURE GROUP NEWS

The IBK Nature Group has published its winter newsletter at www.ibknature.com, where you can learn about a Valentine Nature Lover's hike, the most recent lake water quality report, animal tracks in the snow, winter bird feeding tips, planning for the great American solar eclipse this summer and more.

INNSBROOK HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Innsbrook Historical Society's 2017 membership year has begun. The weather has been kind for January and work is ongoing down at the Log Cabin. A number of projects are underway and Porch Music events are planned along with our "thank you" to our 2017 members, the Spring Fling. Go to www.innsbrookhistoricalsociety.org for more information.

Please note that these are property owner-run clubs, groups and events. If you have club news you'd like to share, call x9180 or send an email to information@innsbrook-resort.com*.*

nature notes

VALENTINE'S MONTH

No matter your feelings about Valentine's Day, there's no avoiding it. Even on a hike through Innsbrook, you'll likely be confronted by a courtship ritual of some sort. For the animals engaged in such displays, though, the whole month of February, not just Valentine's Day, is meant for romance.

Despite the chill that remains in Innsbrook, raccoons, minks, river otters, gray and red foxes, coyotes and skunks all take time off from their mid-winter hunting to prowl for partners. Groundhogs start to look around longingly soon after they emerge from their long winter's sleep, and many of their rodent kin also consider February just the right time for rubbing noses.

Some birds also hit their romantic stride during the second month of the year. Great horned owls start hooting it up in December but mostly wait until now to take care of their romantic business. Male red-winged blackbirds return to much of North America in February and start right in displaying and singing for prospective females.

BALD EAGLE SIGHTINGS

"We saw two beautiful eagles — one mature and one juvenile — fishing on the ice on Lake Innsbrook the week of January 9. It was a really nice sighting — and we wished we'd had a camera to record it!" — Eleanor McCune, Lot #1148

"We had eagles for breakfast three days last week [week of January 9]. As we sat down to enjoy breakfast and looked out the picture window onto Aspenetter Lake, there was an eagle flying low over the lake on three separate mornings. Aspenetter Lake is lowered for silt removal so we thought perhaps the eagles found the fish 'easy pickins'. What a way to start our day at IBK!" — Linde & John Flanders, Lot #971

"I actually saw two eagles on Thursday, January 19 at 8:40 a.m. on the east side of Alpine Lake. We live at 2259 Alpine Lake Dr. in a cove. The eagles were around for at least half an hour, flying over the lake and actually went up in my trees." — Tim Finch

"I observed an adult male eagle hunting/perched on Scheffborg Lake on Friday, January 20." — Glenn "Chuck" Westover, Lot #404

"I watched three bald eagles circling Lake Innsbrook on Saturday, January 21. Two perched for quite a while in a tree, while one ate all but the head of the fish, which he dropped from the tree when he was finished. Those two then flew off to another tree where they stayed for a few minutes before one flew off over the Lake Innsbrook Dam. The other, a couple minutes later, flew across the lake and out of sight in the opposite direction." — Greg Brouk, Lot #197.
