ART SHOW: LAST WEEK!

The Innsbrook Property Owner Art Show features work from the artists in our community. Each week in the Village Views, we'll feature artists with pieces in the show. Stop by the Aspen Center to view these works of art, on display until December 15. Some works are available for sale. Ext. 213.

John Keetch talks about the piece he has on display at the show: "Several years ago, I attempted to paint 'Rhapsody In Blue,' with an Innsbrook twist, in honor of a performance of the work that was done at the [Innsbrook] Institute that year. While I liked my concept, it just didn't work, and I wasn't sure why. A little later, I was temporarily based in New York. Early one morning before sunrise, I was riding from the Kennedy Airport, crossing the Queensborough Bridge and listening to a recording of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra performing 'Rhapsody In Blue.' I happened to turn back to look at the nighttime Manhattan skyline. Then it hit me. 'Rhapsody' is homage to New York City. My painting had no connection to the city – no wonder it didn't work."

NATURE NOTE

The Dark Side of Innsbrook

Going off of daylight savings time in the fall can be a bummer in that it's dark by 5 p.m. However, it also means that you can enjoy stargazing without being a night owl. Seeing the Milky Way is thankfully still quite common at Innsbrook.

Light pollution affects our night skies as well as impacts wildlife, energy consumption, and even our own health. Please consider turning off your outdoor lights when away from Innsbrook, and point landscaping lights downward. Globe at Night is a campaign to raise awareness about light pollution by inviting people to measure their sky brightness and compare results to magnitude guides. Using the Orion constellation as a test, magnitude 1 stars are what you'd be able to see in St. Louis at the Galleria parking lot. Magnitude 7 is what you'd see with the naked eye on top of a isolated mountain in a desert. Innsbrook is somewhere in between.
